Columbus tree stands tall at Rockefeller Center

COLUMBUS – After weeks of preparation, the sound of whirring chainsaws cut through the quiet morning air on Thursday, and after just a few moments, the 76-foot-tall Norway spruce was removed from its stump and ready to make the trip to New York City.

The 75-year-old tree had stood tall on the edge of Chenango County for as long as residents could remember, but all that changed at 8 a.m. Thursday. Destined for New York City, the tree was bound up, lifted by a large crane and cut from

Sherburne American Legion honors local veterans with flag display in park

SHERBURNE – The Thomas Gaines Memorial Park in Sherburne is filled with 450 American flags, each one placed to honor a veteran who served their country.

The Sherburne American Legion Auxiliary began the flag project in 2018, and it has grown every year since then.

Angela Jones came up with the idea for the project after visiting Skaneateles and seeing a similar Memorial Day display. She wanted to bring the idea to Sherburne. With a goal of getting 25 flags set up in the park, Jones got to work.

The first year, 80 individuals reached out to Jones to honor a loved one with a flag, and the first display filled the park. Jones explained that the display is an important way to show how many individuals in the community have served their country. "It makes people realized that we need to thank our veterans past and present," Jones said.

Throughout the year, the Legion collects the names of veterans people would like to honor. Individuals submit their veterans' information and pay $45 the first year to guarantee a flag. The contribution is $20 a year after that.

While many of the veterans are local, some are not. Flags can be placed for any veteran regardless of where they live. Many local families honor veteran family members from other places with a flag. Some are veterans who once lived in Sherburne but have since moved away.

The flags are placed in the park after Halloween and will remain in place until the Saturday before Thanksgiving.

Different organizations and Sherburne American Legion families help to place the flags in the park. "On Saturday the Sherburne Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts came out to help us place the flags," Jones said.

The project is a lot of work, and Jones explained many people contribute to make it a success. Local businesses donate or discount merchandise for the display.

Steel Sales donates all the rebar used to secure the flags.

Top Variety provides all the flagpoles at a significant discount.

Bob Cuffney engineered the design for the flagpoles to make sure the flagpoles would stay standing throughout November.

Sherburne Music-Theater Society presents "It's a Wonderful Life" as a radio production

Sherburne Music-Theater Society prepares to present "It's a Wonderful Life" as a 1940s radio production with live sound effects. Free performances are scheduled for 2 and 7:30 p.m. Saturday, December 5, at the Earlville Opera House. Donations will benefit the society's scholarship fund. (Submitted photos)

EARLVILLE – Sherburne Music-Theater Society will present its annual holiday show on Saturday, December 5, at 2 and 7:30 p.m. at the historic Earlville Opera House. This year's production will be the Christmas classic "It's a Wonderful Life," performed as a 1940s radio production, complete with live sound effects.

Sound effects are made by a team of creative performers who use common household materials to create live sounds that greatly enhance the script. These people are called Foley artists after Jack Foley, who started working at Universal Studios in 1914, during the silent movie era. Sounds like walking in snow might be created by squeezing a bag of cornstarch, or a bone breaking could be created by snapping a stalk of celery.

For the past six weeks, the SMTS Foley team has been experimenting with a variety of materials to create the sounds for the show. This effort will be on display on December 5 at the Earlville Opera House. The production is free of charge and is the SMTS "Gift to the Community." Freewill donations will be accepted at the door to benefit the society's scholarship fund.

The cast consists of 15 actors, each playing several roles, using their vocal talents to create separate and engaging characters to tell the story. The show is directed by Rick Thormahlen, assisted by Kate Reynolds.

This production is made possible with public funds from the Statewide Community Regrants Program, a regrant program of the New York State Council on the Arts with the support of the Governor's Office and the New York State Legislature and administered by the Earlville Opera House.

Come out and enjoy the sounds of "It's a Wonderful Life."

Now that the decorations have come down, Chris and Lori announced that this year's project raised more than $6,000. All the proceeds will be donated to Upstate Golisano Children's Hospital. All of the food donations went to the food pantry in South Otselic.

"We had a scary good time. See you next year," Lori said.

New York State is now accepting applications for the Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP)

ALBANY - Governor Kathy Hochul announced on Monday that the State is now accepting applications for the Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP), helping eligible New Yorkers save on the cost of heating their homes this winter amid rising energy costs. The program could provide up to $1,086 this winter to help low- and middle-income households and older adults, depending on how they heat their home.

"No New Yorker should have to choose between heating their homes this winter and keeping food on the table," Governor Hochul said. "As President Trump's war in Iran drives up energy prices across the country, programs like the Home Energy Assistance Program will deliver relief to New Yorkers who need it most."

Applications for assistance are accepted at local departments of social services and can be submitted online, through the mail or in person. New Yorkers can visit ny.gov/HEAP to learn more and apply. Additionally, older adults needing assistance with HEAP applications can contact their local office for the aging or contact the NY Connects helpline at 1-800-342-9871.

The benefit amounts vary based on income, household size, heating source, and if the household includes a vulnerable member. A family of four can have a gross monthly income up to $6,852, or an annual gross income of up to $82,230, and still qualify for assistance.

In response to the rising cost of heating oil and kerosene stemming from President Trump's war in Iran, New York State has increased base HEAP benefit amounts for recipients who have their heating fuel delivered to enable them to purchase a minimum delivery of fuel. The benefit amount for those who heat with oil, kerosene, or propane has been increased by $90, to $990, and the amount for those who heat with wood, pellets, and coal increased by $65 to $700.

Eligible households can receive one Regular HEAP benefit per season and could also be eligible for an Emergency HEAP benefit if they are in danger of running out of heating fuel or having their utility services shut off. Applications for the additional emergency benefits will be accepted beginning January 4, 2027.

Applications for HEAP assistance are being accepted now at local departments of social services and can be submitted online, through the mail or in person. New Yorkers can visit ny.gov/HEAP to learn more and apply. (File photo)

HEAP benefits are available on a first-come, first-served basis. Eligible low- and middle-income households in need of assistance are encouraged to apply for HEAP benefits as soon as possible.

Beyond helping to defray energy costs, HEAP will also support New Yorkers whose equipment is in need of cleaning and/or repairs. Eligible homeowners can also now apply to have their primary heating equipment inspected and cleaned through the HEAP Heating

Equipment Clean and Tune benefit.

Homeowners with inoperable heating equipment can also apply to have their heating equipment repaired or replaced through HEAP's Heating Equipment Repair and Replacement program. Applicants for these benefits should contact their local department of social services for more information.

New York State Office of Temporary and Disability Assistance Commissioner Barbara C. Guinn said, "Governor Hochul has made energy affordability a top priority of her administration, taking multiple steps to lower energy costs for New Yorkers, and HEAP is an important part of those efforts. HEAP is a lifeline for tens of thousands of households across New York State confronted with rising energy prices. Thanks to Governor Hochul, HEAP benefit amounts were increased for New Yorkers who have their heating fuel delivered to their homes, in recognition of significantly higher costs for heating oil and kerosene."

Households that do not automatically receive assistance through the Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP) can begin applying Monday, November 2.

State Senator Lea Webb said, "Concerns about high utility bills are the most common constituent outreach we receive in my office. No one should be forced to choose between food and a comfortably heated home, yet too many of our residents are faced with this choice every day. One of the most essential supports is the Home Energy Assistance Program, or HEAP. This important program provides critical monetary support to our most vulnerable residents, such as low- and middle-income households and older adults. I encourage all those who are struggling to reach out to their local Department of Social Services and see if they qualify."

Assemblymember Donna Lupardo said, "I'd like to thank Commissioner Guinn for officially opening this year's HEAP application process in Johnson City. We want to make sure that the community is aware that utility assistance programs like HEAP are available. Given the number of people who need help paying their utility bills, I want to urge everyone to check on their eligibility as soon as possible before the funds are exhausted."

its enormous base.

Donated by Rebecca Decker, the tree, located at the edge of the Town of Columbus, was placed on a large platform truck and transported through the county for its debut in Rockefeller Center.

Pedestrians and spectators lined the street as the truck drove through town honking its horn. Acting Columbus Supervisor Jane Prohaska called the experience "a once in a lifetime opportunity."

The entire Unadilla Valley Central School District student body lined State Route 8 as the tree made its way past. "Not only is the tree from our community...it was sourced from the property of one of our UV FAMILIES and they were on hand for the occasion to bid the big spruce farewell," a statement on the school district's Facebook page read.

The tree began the 200-mile trek from Chenango County to New York City on Thursday. It officially arrived in Rockefeller Center on Saturday, November 7. The tree's 50-foot diameter was significantly narrowed by countless cords and ropes wrapped around the branches to make it easier to transport on the highway. The tree was secured and erected in Rockefeller Center on Saturday, but the official tree lighting will not occur until Wednesday, December 2, as part of a televised Christmas event.

"A heartfelt thank-you to the Camenga family for this precious donation and for allowing our small town to be part of such a special and memorable moment," said Prohaska. "We are so proud to share a little piece of Columbus with the world!"

Assemblyman Joseph Angelino joined in the celebration on his Facebook page, saying, "I am excited and proud to report the 2026 Rockefeller Center Christmas Tree is from the 121st Assembly District." Angelino posted several videos of the tree being cut down and arriving in New York City.

Soon, the tree will be adorned with 50,000 LED lights and topped with a 900-pound star. The tree will be on display daily until January 9. Following the Christmas season, the tree will be milled into lumber and donated to Habitat for Humanity.

"We want to thank everyone who has helped, especially the veterans," Jones said. "It takes a village."

The flag display presents a powerful reminder of how many individuals have fought for our country.

"If not for our veterans, past and present, where we would be? They fought for our freedom and we owe them our thanks," Jones said.

Anyone interested in having a flag placed in the park for a veteran in future years can reach out to Jones or contact the American Legion via their Facebook page.

"Since we posted pictures on Facebook, we've already gotten four new requests," Jones said. "They want their family members to be recognized. That's what the display is all about."

Outdoor Chenango: Lots of outdoor options for hunters

Eric Davis

Outdoor Chenango

It is that magical time of year for outdoor recreationalists because there are so many different options of what to do.

Archery hunters are on high alert as the first signs of the rut are showing up, the second split of duck season begins this Saturday, and upland bird season has been open for a few weeks.

With so much to choose from, how can you decide what to do with your limited time off? Use the weather to help you decide.

If rain is in the forecast, consider skipping an archery hunt and hitting the swamp for some duck hunting. Rainy days are often called ducky days.

The churning of the water from the rain mixes up invertebrates and plant seeds in the water and makes them easier for the ducks to feed on. Rain also hides camouflaged hunters better by limiting the ducks' visibility. A spinning-wing decoy will get incoming ducks to try landing with it, so put this where you want to be shooting and leave a little pocket around it.

A lot of cornfields have been harvested along the rivers, so you might spot mallards flying up and down the river going to feed on corn that missed the silage truck.

If it is supposed to be warm and dry, an upland bird hunt can be a great way to enjoy an autumn day. The DEC stocks pheasants on some pieces of state land, so put on your blaze orange and head out with some buddies, your hunting dog or both. Work into the wind with your dog so they can get the scent of any birds. If hunting without a dog, walk in a line with the hunters spaced apart so birds can't run through between them. Just be mindful that archery season is open, so make sure you are following proper safe handling of your firearms and are careful of your shooting directions.

If a cold front comes in, it may be best to sit in a tree stand or ground blind. Cold overnight temperatures can lead to deer feeding longer into the morning before heading to bedding areas. As they head to their bedding areas, the sun is up and you can get a shot. As the day length gets shorter, bucks will start to use scrapes and rubs to mark their territory as the rut approaches.

Rattling can be a good technique as the bucks are establishing territories, and the sound of fighting bucks can draw other bucks in to get in on the action. The first does are starting to come into estrus, and the bucks are starting to cruise to try to find the first receptive doe of the year. Firearms deer season has begun in the Northern Zone, so if you aren't an archery hunter, you can make a moderate drive and can be gun hunting for an elusive Adirondack buck.

Do not be afraid to double-dip or mix and match your days. Duck hunt in the morning and then bow hunt in the afternoon, or bow hunt in the morning and then hit the pheasant field after lunch. With so many options available, there's no excuse to stay at home!

Michelle was an accomplished award-winning seamstress. She got special enjoyment in sewing for her family. After moving to Morris, NY, Michelle started an online bespoke flag and banner business. One of her bespoke flags was featured in Southern Living magazine.

Michelle was also an accomplished pianist; a talent she'd inherited from her mother. In addition to English, Michelle also spoke French.

Michelle's singular joy was in caring for her family.

Michelle was a life-long faithful and active Roman Catholic. Her family continues to be congregants of Holy Cross Parish in Morris.

SUDOKU

Fun By The Numbers
Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

All Animals Matter getting support from Thanksgiving pies charity

REBECCA LAIBOWITZ
GAZETTE STAFF WRITER

OXFORD – Pies by Terri is operated by former Oxford Academy teacher Terri Woodford snd over the years she has raised funds for various community initiatives by selling pies for Thanksgiving.

This year, her Thanksgiving pie sale will benefit All Animals Matter (AAM), a not-for-profit organization dedicated to helping animals that is based in Oxford.

Diane Troxell, founder of AAM, said, "This community support will help us raise funds to primarily assist in the cost of spaying and neutering cats and dogs, primarily in Chenango and Delaware Counties."

Woodford explained that over the years she has donated her Thanksgiving pie sale proceeds to various local causes, beginning with selling 50 pies for her daughter's school sports team. She has helped a family who lost their home in a fire, contributed to the Oxford Pool Repair Fund, supported scholarship funds and more.

All Animals Matter Inc. a 501c3 nonprofit organization based in Oxford aims to help dogs and cats throughout Chenango and Delaware counties with spaying/neutering, emergency veterinary costs, and pet food. (Submitted photo)

"I've always chosen a local cause," Woodford said, explaining how she admires the work that AAM does for the community. She said, "I know Diane works very hard. It's an organization I think is great, they do so much to help people with pets."

AAM provides low-cost spay and neuter programs to residents, as well as operating a trap, neuter, release (TNR) program for feral cats to help curb overpopulation in a humane way. The organization also operates a pet food bank where pet owners can pick up dog and cat food free of charge.

Troxell said that so far this year the organization has helped 1,100 cats and 250 dogs get spayed or neutered.

"Our pet food bank is being used every week by people who cannot afford to purchase food for their pets. I quite often deliver to pet owners," Troxell said, thanking Tractor Supply stores in Norwich and Greene for donating pet food for both dogs and cats throughout the year.

"Another expense we help with is euthanasia for pet owners and emergency care. So donations from the public any time of year is needed to support these things," said Troxell.

At the time of the interview, Troxell had just helped transport 48 cats from 16 towns in Chenango County and three towns in Delaware County for spaying and neutering through AAM's bimonthly Animal Care Sanctuary Cat Clinic.

"Whatever this pie sale event makes for us, is just wonderful and appreciated," Troxell said.

For the Thanksgiving pie sale, there are different flavor options, including apple, cherry, blueberry, blackberry, mixed berry, strawberry rhubarb and raspberry. Customers have a choice between a six-inch pie for $9 and a nine-inch pie for $18. The order deadline is November 13.

To order, contact Terri Woodford by phone at 607-371-1065, email twoodford1963@gmail.com or send a Facebook message to Pies by Terri. Only cash or checks are accepted, and pick-up is on Wednesday, November 25, at two locations: 73 Greene St., Oxford, or the Delaware Valley Humane Society in Sidney.

Troxell will be delivering the pies to DVHS, an organization that regularly collaborates with AAM on its initiatives, also making the sale accessible to supporters in that area.

For those who wish to support All Animals Matter, Inc., without buying a pie, donations can be sent to P.O. Box 369, Oxford, NY 13830. Troxell says they also accept Venmo.

Find out more information about AAM on its website, allanimalsmatterinc.com, and find Pies by Terri on Facebook.

DCMO BOCES School Lunch Management Program Honored

BINGHAMTON -– The DCMO BOCES School Lunch Management team was honored at an event in Binghamton in October. The Rural Health Network of South Central New York held its annual Rural Health Awards celebration, recognizing individuals and organizations whose dedication and contributions advance the health and well-being of rural people and communities in the region.

The DCMO BOCES School Lunch Management team was named this year's Rural Health Champion at the event, held at the SUNY Broome Culinary Center in Binghamton. The award is presented to an individual or organization that exhibits concern for rural issues and takes steps to address those concerns. For DCMO BOCES, those steps include partnering with the Rural Health Network's Farm to School program to create healthier rural communities by forging connections with local food producers and expanding their students' access to fresh, healthy local food.

Members of the DCMO BOCES School Lunch Management team were recognized with the Rural Health Champion Award Tuesday night at the Rural Health Network of South Central New York's awards celebration in Binghamton. From left: Dee Shalna, Brandi Fiester, Luci Hopps, School Lunch Manager Connie Babino, Nicole D'Elia, Deanna Jacobs, and Rural Health Network Farm to School Coordinator Hannah Ogborn. (Submitted photo)

Since 2018, when DCMO BOCES began their Farm to School partnership, the program has grown in both scope and reach, from a single school district to 16 participating school districts and their nearly 11,000 students. Their successful partnership has increased opportunities for students to try local foods through taste tests and "NY Thursday" lunches, expanded professional development opportunities for school nutrition staff, and supported New York State producers through local procurement efforts. "Students can taste new foods, learn where their food comes from, and enjoy more New York-grown products in their school meals," according to Hannah Ogborn, Rural Health Network's Farm to School Program Coordinator. "Local farmers and food businesses gain new opportunities to reach schools, and our communities benefit from stronger connections between local agriculture and children's health."

DCMO BOCES was recognized for actively working to grow their program, including applying for and managing three New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets Farm to School Grants, as well as continuing to invest their own time, resources, and creativity into making Farm to School an important part of their school food service. "Their commitment goes far beyond the food they serve," said Ogborn. "The School Lunch Management staff genuinely know and care about their students. They understand that every meal is an opportunity to nourish a child, that every new food can spark curiosity, and that small experiences in a school cafeteria can help shape a child's relationship with food for years to come."

Constance Babino, DCMO BOCES School Lunch Manager, accepted the award, along with members of the school lunch team. The DCMO BOCES School Lunch Management program currently provides cafeteria management and planning services for both DCMO BOCES campuses and schools in the following districts: Afton CSD, Bainbridge-Guilford CSD, Downsville CSD, Greene CSD, Hancock CSD, Norwich CSD, Oneonta CSD, Otselic Valley CSD, Oxford Academy CSD, Schenevus CSD, Sherburne-Earlville CSD, Sidney CSD, Unatego CSD and Walton CSD. DCMO BOCES is a regional provider of educational services to students and schools, and operates school campuses in Sidney Center and Norwich. TALKING ABOUT TRILOBITES

Trilobites are an extinct group of marine animals that first appeared during the Cambrian period about 521 million years ago. They thrived in our planet's oceans for more than 270 million years before they finally became extinct about 250 million years ago. Their long track record and extreme species diversity ranks them among the most successful group of animals that have ever lived on our planet.

This cartoon is ancient history.

This edition of Shortcuts is sponsored by Bob Fossil.

What do you call a trilobite with two wheels? A trilobike.

People say my choreography is rock solid.

What comes after a trilobite? A trilo-chew, and then a trilo-swallow.

BODY LANGUAGE

Trilobites are classified as arthropods, along with arachnids, insects and crustaceans. Arthropods have an exoskeleton, jointed appendages and a segmented body.

Trilobite species varied greatly in size. The largest measured more than 70 cm (28 in.) in length, while the smallest measured less than 1 mm (1/25 of an inch).

Trilobites lived on our planet longer than the dinosaurs.

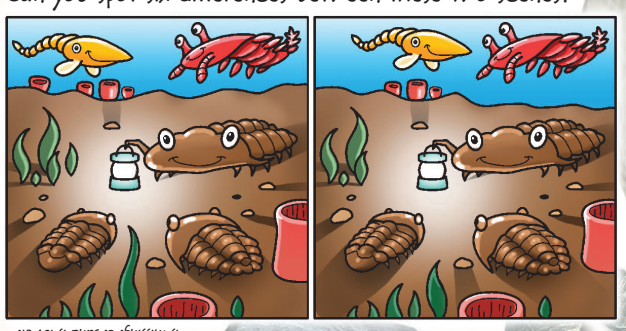
Trilobite fossils are found on every continent.

Why couldn't the trilobite fossil adapt to the modern world? It was stuck in the past.

Trilobites appeared more than 250 million years before the first dinosaurs.

TRILO-BRIGHT

Can you spot six differences between these two scenes?



GAME ANSWERS: 1. Fish is moved. 2. Sponge is smaller. 3. Seaweed is shorter. 4. Seaweed is missing. 5. Sponge is missing. 6. Sand is lower.

WORD SEARCH

Can you find the hidden words? Search carefully because some words are backward or diagonal.

Scientists have identified more than 20,000 different species of trilobites.

SAME MOLT THING

Like other arthropods, trilobites could grow larger only by shedding their rigid exoskeleton and replacing it with a newer one in a process called "molting." Most of the trilobite fossils found in the world are actually shed exoskeletons and not of a living animal.

Trilobites were among the most diverse and common animals during the Cambrian Period.

"Enrollment" is a term scientists use to describe a trilobite's ability to roll its body into a ball as a defense against predators.

Many species of trilobites had compound eyes similar to a modern-day fly's or dragonfly's. Trilobites were among the first animals on our planet to develop complex eyes.

Trilobites went extinct during the Permian-Triassic extinction event that also killed off about 90% of the species on Earth.

How did the trilobite get around to attending college? She enrolled.
