America's Sweet Spot serves up patriotic goodness in New Berlin

BY JESSICA BENSON
GAZETTE STAFF WRITER

NEW BERLIN — Husband and wife team Josh Wright and Samantha Yazwa opened America's Sweet Spot in New Berlin with a goal to provide delicious, unique meals at affordable prices. The restaurant, which opened in August, provides a constantly changing menu and an array of foods to satisfy their customers and keep them coming back.

"We try to make this an affordable, safe place in town for kids to hang out, Yazwa said of her business. "It's been my goal to open something in the community for a long time," said Wright. "Being from this community, it holds something special to me."

Wright a life-long New Berlin resident, said he's always wanted to run a business in his hometown. When the couple saw the building was available, they decided to go for it.

business with a patriotic focus. Yazwa explained that what makes the business special is the attention the couple puts into their products and their customers.

"Everything is homemade," said Yazwa. "We wanted to create something different. We do a little of everything." When the restaurant opened, Yazwa and Wright created a menu that they hoped the community would enjoy, but Yazwa explained she is constantly adding different items to the selection as she hears what customers want.

"We offer wraps and salads, protein bowls, bread, and our selection of fried balls." Yazwa said the restaurant has quickly become known for their selection of fried balls. "We have ten different types on the menu as well as two dessert balls," Yazwa said.

The selection includes lasagna balls, cheeseburger balls and Philly cheesesteak balls. To keep the selection fun, Yazwa said she sometimes holds "ball-drop" events on her social media pages where she announces what flavors of balls will be added to the menu. In addition, the restaurant has protein drinks, smoothies and has recently added a carnivore menu and a carb-free menu to help customers stick to their New Year's resolutions.

"We want to keep prices affordable so families can afford to eat," she explained, adding that the prices are between $10-$15 for a while meal. Kids' meals cost $6. "We want to keep it as cheap as we can so families can eat out for $100 or less."

Yazwa and Wright worked on catering events in the past and this is a service that the restaurant offers as well. "We do catering boards, salads and charcuterie boards as well for people to pick up."

When it comes to sweets, the couple serves Gilligan's Ice Cream and offers desserts like build your own cheesecake cups, and cake stackers where customers can add their own toppings to the dessert items.

"It's super important to us to be community focused," Yazwa said.

For that reason, America's Sweet Spot feels it's important to support local events and causes that are close to their heart, such as charities focused on cancer, Autism and premature babies. They also make a conscious effort to listen to anything their customers say and being open to suggestions. The business owners plan to continue adding more things, such as all-you-can-eat nights and paint and sip events to make the most of their business for their customers.

America's Sweet Spot is open Tuesday-Thursday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. They offer delivery within the village limits.

PITTSFIELD - New York State Police at Richfield Springs responded to a crash involving an Amish buggy and a pickup truck on Jan. 8 at approximately 3:18 p.m. on County Highway 13 near Mooretown Road in the Town of Pittsfield.

Police said an investigation at the scene determined a Ford pickup truck was traveling east on County Highway 13 when the operator drifted to the right, striking a horse and buggy that was traveling in the same direction on the shoulder of the roadway.

The buggy was occupied by four children at the time of the crash.

A 12-year-old female from New Berlin was transported to Bassett Hospital and treated for minor injuries.

Three other children, a 14-year-old male, a 9-year-old female and a 7-year-old male, all of New Berlin, were checked at the scene but were not transported, police said. A horse sustained fatal injuries in the collision.

The operator of the pickup truck, Thomas G. Aitken, 26, of Morris, did not report any injuries and was issued a citation, according to NY State Police.

According to AAA at westerncentralnyaaa.com, in New York, Amish buggies are legally permitted on public roads and must display either a slow-moving vehicle emblem (the triangular orange and red sign mounted on the rear) or use reflective tape outlining the buggy and have a lit lantern on the driver's side.

When in an area known to have a local Amish community, motorists should use extra caution, slow down and be patient. When approaching hills or sharp curves use caution, maintain a safe

Otsego County Sheriff deputies respond to stabbing in domestic dispute

OTSEGO COUNTY

The Otsego County Sheriff’s Office arrested a Worcester man following an investigation into a stabbing that occurred during the course of a domestic incident.

Christopher R. Roettger, 25, of Worcester, was charged with first degree assault and fourth degree criminal possession of a weapon.

Prior to the arrival of first responders, the defendant fled the scene and deputies located a victim suffering from multiple stab wounds inside the residence.

The victim was provided medical care by Otsego County EMS and transported to Bassett Hospital for further medical attention.

During the course of the investigation, police made contact with the defendant who returned to the scene to turn himself in and he was taken into custody without incident. Investigators applied for and were granted a search warrant for the residence and the defendant’s vehicle where additional evidence was secured.

The Otsego County District Attorney’s Office recommended bail be set at $100,000 cash.

The defendant was processed and remanded to the Otsego County Correctional Facility pending arraignment in court. An order of protection was requested on behalf of the victim.

The Otsego County Sheriff’s Office was assisted by the New York State Police Forensic Investigation Unit.

where people can gather, belong, and thrive, and we’re excited for these four projects to make a deeper, lasting impact.”

New Berlin’s Hyde park is a 1.4-acre green space with a small gazebo, assorted playground equipment, and an asphalt-covered area with basketball hoops. According to the project proposal, the $250,000 grant money will be used to transform Hyde Park into a wellness and activity area for all ages.

Lennon said the work at Hyde Park will include three definite improvements. A committee will be created to look at the rest of the proposed concepts and make sure all the pieces fit together. The three definite improvements will be resurfacing the basketball court, upgrading and replacing the existing playground equipment and adding a drinking fountain to the park.

Lennon said the village may look at using a multi-sport surface for the basketball court to allow pickleball and other games to be played in the area as well.

Lennon explained that there is currently a variety of playground equipment, but most is geared toward children eight years old and below. He said he would like to expand the playground equipment to include teens and adults by adding balance beams and obstacle course items that could be enjoyed by people of all ages.

“We want to transform the mission of the park to be a wellness area for the whole community,” Lennon said. “We want to create an environment for those who want to get out and be active.”

In addition, the proposed park project calls for improvements to the gazebo and seating areas for outdoor concerts.

New Berlin hosts concerts at the gazebo in the summer as part of the summer music series. The New Berlin Cultural Center also uses the gazebo for youth activities throughout the year. Lennon said it would be great to see park bench seating or even stadium step seating on the slope of the hill leading to the basketball court.

We want the park to be more attractive for social activities, musical and cultural activities, as well as athletic opportunities,” Lennon said.

While some areas seem to have trouble with problematic behavior in municipal parks, Lennon believes New Berlin has gotten ahead of the issue by installing high resolution cameras. He hopes this project will improve lighting in the park to further combat the issue. “Part of the project is discussing if there is a need for additional security.” The proposed project also calls for the additional of paths to navigate the area and ensure ADA compliance.

“We want everyone to be able to get out and enjoy the fresh air,” Lennon said.

The next step in the process is for a committee to start looking at the proposed ideas and determining their priorities. “The project will be put out to bid during the colder weather,” Lennon said. “We want shovels in the ground as early as we can.”

The Chobani Legacy Project also provided funds to communities in Twin Falls, Idaho, Muskegon, Michigan, and Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

The Chenango County opioid crisis continues to affect families, workplaces and community organizations

NORWICH - The PULSE (Preventing Use, Loss, and Stigma Through Education) Coalition believes prevention and harm reduction are strongest when the entire community is empowered with tools that save lives.

One of the most important of these tools is Narcan (naloxone), a safe, easy-to-use medication that can reverse an opioid overdose within minutes. Access to Narcan should never be limited by cost or availability, which is why we are committed to helping local businesses and community agencies receive it for free. Whether you operate a small business, manage a nonprofit program, run a community center, or serve the public in any capacity, having Narcan on-site is a simple step that can make the difference between life and death.

Through The PULSE, organizations can request Narcan kits or a wall-mountable Narcan metal box. The coalition can also help coordinate restocking Narcan if kits are taken, used or outdated. It also provides educational materials, stigma-reduction resources, and guidance on developing internal overdose-response policies. The PULSE is a coalition of volunteer members and organizations such as Chenango County Behavioral Health, Chenango Health Network, Chenango County Health Department, Commerce Chenango, United Way and many others. The group meets monthly to work on projects and share information. The PULSE can be reached at 607-386-9331 or by contacting the Chenango Health Network.

Other key organizations that supply Narcan include MATTERS (Medication for Addiction Treatment & Electronic Referrals), LEAF (Leading Education to Advance Futures), FORDO (Friends of Recovery Dedicated to Others), STAP (Southern Tier AIDS Program), CCBHS (Chenango County Behavioral Health Services), and ACBC (The Addiction Center of Broome County). These are just some of the agencies that can help link your business or agency to a free Narcan box or supply of Narcan that can be located in your office where you see fit. They also coordinate how to refill the box, supply additional information, provide support to individuals at your workplace, or provide education on a variety of subjects related to harm reduction and prevention services.

Bringing Narcan into your organization or workplace is not just an act of preparedness; it's an act of compassion. This action signals to employees and community members that their lives matter, and that our county stands united in preventing overdose deaths.

As a coalition focused on proactive solutions, The PULSE is committed to making harm-reduction strategies accessible, practical and community-driven. We invite any Chenango County business or agency to partner with us. Together, we can strengthen our local safety net and ensure that life-saving medication is where it's needed most — right here in our community. For more information, or to request free Narcan kits, please contact The PULSE. The coalition can help you or connect you with one of the agencies that can provide what you need. Let's continue working together to keep Chenango County safe, informed and connected.

The PULSE is a teen/student-led coalition. Our work is based on the prevention of substance use. This gives our teens/students the ability to build leadership skills, improve public speaking, and set a positive example for peers within the Norwich, Sherburne-Earlville, and Unadilla-Valley school districts.

This is an opportunity with benefits not only for community improvement, but also for teens/students. It includes opportunities for teens/students to travel, build leadership, and gain community service hours that may be included in reference letters for college applications.

The coalition works to change and implement a code of conduct related to alcohol or substance use. It encourages teens/students to plan and implement community events, opens the door to new education and training options, and helps create a safe and healthy community for teens/students and future teens.

Outdoor Chenango: Going back in time

Eric Davis

Outdoor Chenango

When talking to just about any hunter about how they got into hunting, the story often shifts to starting out hunting small game as a kid. Whether it was squirrels, rabbits, or upland birds, they were the start of a lifelong love of the outdoors.

With deer season over, now is the perfect time to take a trip down memory lane and go small game hunting. If there is a lot of snow on the ground I usually opt for rabbit hunting and won't bother with squirrels and if there is no snow, the rabbits get a pass and I squirrel hunt.

Before I was old enough to deer hunt, I looked forward to the Christmas season because it meant that my friends and I could start rabbit hunting on their dairy farm with the conclusion of the muzzleloader season. We hunted with a dog but she wasn't a rabbit dog. Daisy was a small, mixed breed dog they got from the local shelter that went everywhere with Todd and Matt. We would walk up overgrown creek bottoms going from one patch of brush to the next looking for rabbits. We would set up in a triangle around the brush and someone would convince Daisy there was a rat in the brush (she loved killing barn rats). Once Daisy was in the brush, any rabbits that were hiding inside would come running out and hopefully one of us would get a shot at the fleeing rabbit.

Sometimes the brush was too thick for even 10-pound Daisy to fit in so we would have two shooters on the ready and one person would go up and kick and stomp the brush to get any hiding rabbits to leave. We would have a variety of firearms between the three of us. One person carried a .22 rifle for rabbits that stopped in plain sight and the other two carried shotguns, often one 20 gauge and one .410 for running rabbits.

Squirrel hunting was often an early fall activity when I started hunting but now that I go hunting in September, and archery season starts October 1st I don't even think about squirrel hunting until later in the fall. Honestly, I think about squirrel hunting all fall as they make a ruckus around my treestands while I'm deer hunting. I just wait until deer season is over to hunt them. Hunting squirrels this late in the year can be tricky as they don't move a lot since it's cold.

It sounds like late season deer hunting, you need to hunt the food. Oak flats and hickory groves are often productive as squirrels will hang around looking for any leftover nuts on the ground, or they have their stashes of nuts in the area near these trees. I like a .22 rifle with a scope for this. The woods are wide open as most low vegetation has died and all the leaves are off the trees, so a firearm that can shoot a squirrel at a distance is needed. If you want to knock back the population near your treestand, sit right in the stand. Otherwise pick a spot with a decent vantage point and sit there for half an hour, then move if you haven't had any action. Try to stay still and move as little as possible, squirrels are almost always nervous since a lot of things will eat them and they can pick up on movement.

As with any other game species, proper care after the harvest is what leads to good meals. Rabbit stew is one of my favorites. There are very few things better than a slow cooker full of hot stew after working outside in the cold. Squirrel can also make a good stew. I've heard from other hunters that squirrel legs dredged in flour and deep-fried are delicious but I am yet to try this method.

U.S. Army helicopters pay visit to Lt. Warren E. Eaton Airport

BY KELLI MILLER
GAZETTE STAFF WRITER

NORWICH - On Sunday, January 4, Lt. Warren E. Eaton Airport, located at 6390 State Highway 12 in Norwich, received an incoming call from a 10th Mountain Division pilot out of the Fort Drum Army Base requesting fuel for one of their helicopters.

According to Chenango County Planning and Development Director Shane Butler, Airport Operations Frank Turner received the message saying an Apache and Blackhawk helicopter needed to fuel up.

The helicopters were on their way to do a fly over High Mark Stadium at the Buffalo Bills versus New York Jets game to commemorate the last regular season home game at the stadium.

Butler said crews usually just fly over the airport for training operations but this time was special because they made a stop, which he said is very unusual.

Senior Planner Allison Yacano were at the airport, ready to fuel the carriers and get them back on their way.

"Frank was able to take a picture with the crew in front of one of the helicopters," said Butler. "It's definitely a unique experience that doesn't happen often."

He said the airport would welcome return visits and that service crews focused on getting the helicopters back in the air as fast and professional as possible.

"Although they were an amazing crew and super friendly, we try not to barrage them with too many questions," Butler said.

In an appreciative gesture, the crew offered the service team, Turner and Yacano, Army patches with their unit logo.

Butler explained Lt. Warren E. Eaton Airport is a general aviation airport without an air traffic control tower. He said sometimes people let them know they are stopping, other times they don't. In this instance, Turner was called ahead of time and for security and privacy, the public was not informed of the landings.

"However, there are websites and apps where you can track flights," he continued. "FlightAware did have their arrival and departure publicly listed. We often check FlightAware regularly of if we hear one overhead, we will also check FlightRadar24."

Butler said the airport appreciated the visit and the purchase of fuel helps keep the airport operational.

He said, "funds are tight, so any unexpected visit is a wonderful thing, and we can only hope this visit will impact future operations at the airport."

"If we provide a friendly service and competitive fuel prices, we hope they will come back," Butler added. "That's as best we can do."

He also mentioned the airport was working on ideas to welcome back the aircraft, if the opportunity presents itself.

The added spectacle of a Blackhawk and Apache headed to celebrate a major sporting event at a Buffalo Bills game drives attention to the airport and with their upcoming 100th year anniversary, Butler hopes this visit will encourage others to visit the airport.

For good measure, Butler added, "Go Bills." The Bills would go on to win the game against the Jets, 35 to 8.

states that nearly 15,000 military service members and about 3,700 civilian personal work at Fort Drum with approximately 16,000 family members living on post or in the area.

Fort Drum provides training and base operations support to all of the service branches, 11 states and parts of Canada.

According to Military.com, The Black Hawk Helicopter is rugged and versatile and is trusted for critical missions from air assault to emergency responses around the world.

The UH-60 Black Hawk Helicopter is the U.S. Army's primary medium-lift utility transport and air assault aircraft. It is a twin engined, equipped with a single four-bladed rotor and a single four-bladed tail rotor. The basic crew is made up of three: the pilot, co-pilot and crew chief.

With over 5,000 built for 36 nations and over 15 million flight hours, including 5 million in combat.

According to army-technology.com, the Apache Attack Helicopter (AH-64A/D) entered into service with the U.S. Army in 1984. The AH-64D Apache Longbow is fitted with fire control radar and the Hellfire missile. The crew consists of two: a pilot and co-pilot/gunner.

A total of about 2,700 have been delivered to the U.S. Army and exported to a number of countries including Egypt, Greece, Israel, India, Korea, Saudi Arabia and more.

More than 1,275 Apache aircraft are currently in service with the U.S. Army and international forces around the world.

The Apache Helicopter has completed five million flight hours including 1.3 million in combat operations as of March 2023. It was first used in combat in 1989 in the US military action in Panama.
