Local clerk is appointed marriage officer

NEW Earlier a New Berlin Town Clerk was appointed as a marriage officer, allowing individuals in Chenango County to get married in New Berlin without going through a judge or church.

According to Marriage Officer and Clerk of the Town of New Berlin Deborah Barker, the idea to have an appointed clerk marriage officer stemmed from a training seminar she recently attended.

"I didn't know municipalities could appoint a marriage officer until after I attended a training session that happened to cover it," said Barker. "Once I knew

> She said currently as a town clerk she issues marriage licenses, but thought having the opportunity for individuals to have a simple marriage would be an added bonus for the area. She added that not all town justices perform in wedding ceremonies, nor do they have to.

> "We have people that want a simple, legal marriage, and a lot of judges or churches aren't available for them," said Barker. "After Monday night's meeting, the Town of New Berlin has another service that we can provide to our community."

Barker said she is taking on the role without asking for additional money from taxpayers, and the town will charge a $75 fee per marriage. She added that the process is relatively short, and participants will receive their marriage certificates in the mail.

"The main stipulation is that the marriage has to occur in the governing body's jurisdiction, or in this case the Town of New Berlin," said Barker. "Anyone can stop into the town hall or call us if they have questions or are interested in learning more."

Those who are interested in going through the Town of New Berlin for the marriage license or certificate may call (607) 847-8909 for more information.

CAC announces return of student art show

NORWICH - The Chenango Arts Council is pleased to announce the return of its annual Chenango Area Student Art (CASA) exhibition on Friday, April 5.

The event will consist of an awards ceremony for two scholarships, CAC's Student Art Show, and Artistic Discovery, where 6 entries will be submitted to Congressman Anthony Brindisi's office for a chance to appear in the 2019 Congressional Art Show in Washington,

Scheduled to run through April 19th at the Arts Council's Mariea Brown and Raymond Loft Galleries, the exhibition recognizes talent from across Chenango County's seven school districts.

With a focus on conventional mediums most often associated with high school art curriculum – mixed media, paint, photography, drawing and 3-D art submissions are judged by a panel of local artists and arts educators. Only 2-D art may be considered for Artistic Discovery.

The Lucy Funke Scholarship, named in honor of Mrs. Lucy Funke, longtime executive director responsible for the success and stature of the Chenango Arts Council as it's known in the community today, awards two $1,000 scholarships to seniors in Chenango county based on merit and pursuit of the arts as a career through higher education.

New this year, The Arts Council will also award one $1000 scholarship to a Chenango County senior who intends to go on to study music in college.

"Generating interest in the lifelong pursuit of the arts from early adulthood onward is one of the cornerstones of the CAC's mission," said Arts Council executive director Alecia ONeill. "Whether we're hosting a reception for one of our artists-members, local students, or artists from out-of-town, public participation and community appreciation at gallery receptions are significant in galvanizing the culture of creativity in Chenango County. It's through exposure to the arts and art education that students discover their talent; CASA is simply the stage for them to express their passion."

ONeill also noted that the annual scholarships programs through the CAC are intended to assist high school seniors enrolling in a program of study within the arts and who have long-term goals of joining the arts workforce.

"The Lucy Funke Scholarships are meant to reinforce the notion that students can obtain employment gainful within the arts field after high school," said ONeill. "The disciplines of design and commercial art processes are essential in many industries; community support has allowed us to award these scholarships annually. We are also very excited to offer the new Chenango County Music Scholarship. There are so many opportunities in the arts, we want to encourage students to pursue every avenue available to them. The generosity of Chenango County allows us to help support students' continuing education in the arts."

Interested students should contact their school's guidance office or art instructors, or call the Chenango Arts Council at 607.336. ARTS for more informa-

FOR THE HEALTH OF IT

Observing National Nutrition Month

CHENANGO COUNTY - Each March, National Nutrition Month is celebrated to focus attention on the importance of making informed food choices and developing sound habits. Small changes to your daily eating or drinking habits can make a positive difference to your health. The Chenango County Department Health 2019 health campaign encourages you to "Rethink Your Drink, Drink Chenango: Water."

Drinking water is important for overall health and well-being. It is a simple change that anyone can make in their daily lives that can greatly change overall health for the better.

Heart Disease is the number one cause of premature death in Chenango County, ranking #1 in NY State. Four out of ten adults living in Chenango County are obese. This high incidence of obesity directly affects health outcomes such as diabetes and cardiovascular disease. Chenango County ranks #4 for its achieve better health.

Drinking water can reduce your risk for the following conditions: Obesity, Dental Caries, Heart Disease, Stroke, Type 2 Diabetes, Liver Disease, and Kidney Disease.

Drinking water is a alternative healthy to sugary drinks such as soda, fruit drinks, energy drinks or sports drinks. Many of these types of drinks contain more sugar than people often realize, giving them unwanted extra calories and causing tooth decay. Popular soda brands contain approximately 15-18 teaspoons of sugar in one 20 ounce bottle and 275 calories.

Some sports drinks, iced teas and flavored waters that people often view as healthier alternatives to soda contain 8-12 teaspoons of sugar in one 20 ounce bottle and 160 calories. It is very important to read labels when choosing these drinks.

Drinking one 12 ounce soda a day can lead to a weight gain of 15 pounds a year.

The Chenango County Health Department will be doing a variety of education and awareness this year focused around "Rethink your drink: Drink Water," visiting medical providers, educating community partners, creating displays, posters and print materials, along with radio spots and variety of other activities. All new parents will receive information about drink recommendations by mail, including when to introduce juice and how much. Here is a short list of some of those tips:

- No juice for under 12 months old, unless recommended vour child's doctor
- Limiting to 4 ounces of juice per day for 1-3 year olds, 6 ounces of juice per day for 4-6 year olds and 8 ounces of juice per day for 7 years old through adulthood.
- Exclusive breastfeedmonths and continued to 1-2 years of
- Toddlers should not be given juice or sugared drinks from bottles or sippy cups that allow them to easily drink throughout the day. Constant exposure of sugars on the teeth leads to decay.

- Children should be encouraged to eat whole fruits that provide more benefits and dietary fiber than juice.
- Add fruit to water to make it more appealing such as lemon, cucumber, berries, or mint.
- Only use 100% fresh or reconstituted fruit juice when given.
- Order water when you eat out or when you have fast food. It is often given for free.

The purpose of the National Nutrition Month Campaign is to increase the public's awareness of the importance of good nutrition. You can start by choosing more water. Your body depends on water to survive, making up 60 percent of your body weight. It helps to get rid of waste, regulate temperature, lubricate joints, make healthy skin, and protects sensitive tissues. Every cell, tissue and organ in your body needs water to work properly. The Chenango County Health Department encourages you to make a small change for your health and "Rethink drink: Drink your Water, Chenango."

NORWICH - Last week the Chenango Dialysis Center added signage and passed its final city code inspection, moving one step closer to opening.

The City of Norwich Code Department completed its final inspection of the Chenango Dialysis Center last week, thus allowing the center to move forward towards opening by installing its equipment and obtaining its certificate of occupancy.

"It's coming along said great," City Code Norwich Officer Enforcement Donnison. "They've worked really hard and the contractors are meeting their deadline, so everything's going really good."

Chenango Dialysis Center Clinic Manager Christine Rogers said the center does not yet have an official opening date and she was unable to share the tentative date, but city officials have mentioned early June as the target window for the center's opening during the January joint committees meeting's code enforcement update.

In the meantime, Rogers said individuals can sign up to be placed on a waiting list for the Chenango Dialysis Center to be admitted once it's opened.

"The number that they can call is (315) 363-1393 at our Oneida Dialysis Clinic and they can ask for Leigh in Social Work," said Rogers, adding that individuals can either call themselves or have their current clinic social worker call on their behalf. "Leigh will be able to obtain the correct information and get them on the waiting list where they need to be."

The Chenango Dialysis Center will be run by American Renal Associates, which operates over 200 dialysis centers in the country, including one in Oneida. It will be the only dialysis center in Chenango County, filling a need for individuals who currently are forced to travel for their dialysis on a regular basis.

The Chenango Dialysis Center will be located in Suite 6A at 54 East Main Street in the Tops plaza, beside Occupational UHS Medicine.

"On Benjamin Franklin"

The last two columns have been devoted to Benjamin Franklin's genius, wit, wisdom, and stories by and about him. Surely by now he has been glorified in American science, literature, and politics as beyond reproach. But in fact his greatness has drawn mean spirite disparagement and sarcasm by the most celebrated American author: Mark Twain.The author of innumerable American classics featuring the classics Tom Sawyer, Huckleberry Finn, and travel in Europe, wrote criticisms of Franklin on at least two occasions. It should be Twain noted that also wrote a similar vicious essay of James Fenimore Cooper

In 1870 Twain wrote an essay in the Galaxy magazine from which the following excerpt is taken.

"The Late Benjamin Franklin" by Mark Twain

"Never put off till to-morrow what you can do day after to-morrow just as well."--B. F.]

This party was one of those persons whom they call Philosophers. He was twins, being born simultaneously in two different houses in the city of Boston. These houses remain unto this day, and have signs upon them worded in accordance with the facts. The signs are considered well enough to have, though not necessary, because the inhabitants point out the two birthplaces to the stranger anyhow, and sometimes as often as several times in the same day. The subject of this memoir was of a vicious disposition, and early prostituted his talents to the invention of maxims and aphorisms calculated to inflict suffering upon the rising generation of all subsequent ages. His simplest acts, also, were contrived with a view to their being held up for the emulation of boys forever--boys who might otherwise have been happy. It was in this spirit that he became the son of a soap-boiler, and probathan that the efforts two cents' worth of of all future boys who tried to be anything might be looked upon with suspicion unless they were the sons of soap-boilers.

With a malevolence which is without parallel in history, he would work all day, and then sit up nights, and let on to be studying algebra by the light of a smoldering fire, so that all other boys might have to do that also, or else have Benjamin Franklin thrown up to them. Not satisfied with these proceedings, he had a fashion of living wholly on bread and water, and studying astronomy at mealtime--a thing which has brought affliction to millions of boys since, whose fathers had read Franklin's pernicious biography.

His maxims were full of animosity toward boys. Nowadays a boy cannot follow out a single natural instinct without tumbling over some of those everlasting aphorisms and hearing from Franklin, on the spot. If he buys peanuts, his father says, "Remember what Franklin has said, my son--'A grout a day's a penny a year"; and the comfort is all gone out of those peanuts. If he wants to spin his top when he has done work, his father quotes, "Procrastination is the thief of time." If he does a virtuous action, he never gets anything for it, because "Virtue is its own reward." And that boy is hounded to death and robbed of his natural rest, because Franklin, said once, in one of his inspired flights of malignity:

Early to bed and early to rise

Makes a man healthy and wealthy and wise.

As if it were any object to a boy to be healthy and wealthy and wise on such terms. The sorrow that maxim has cost me, through my parents, experimenting on me with it, tongue cannot tell. The legitimate result is my present state of general debility, indigence, and mental aberration. My parents used to have me up before nine o'clock in the morning sometimes when I was a boy. If they had let me take my natural rest where would I have been now? Keeping store, no doubt, and respected by all.

And what an adroit old adventurer the subject of this memoir was! In order to get a chance to fly his kite on Sunday he used to hang a key on the string and let on to be fishing for lightning. And a guileless public would go home chirping about the "wisdom" and the "genius" of the hoary Sabbath-breaker. If anybody caught him playing "mumblepeg" by himself, after the age of sixty, he would immediately appear to be ciphering out how the grass grew--as if it was any of his business. My grandfather knew him well, and he says Franklin was always fixed--always ready. If a body, during his old age, happened on him unexpectedly when he was catching flies, or making mudpies, or sliding on a cellar door, he would immediately look wise, and rip out a maxim, and walk off with his nose in the air and his cap turned wrong side before, trying to appear absent-minded and eccentric. He was a hard lot".

Annual award ceremony held by Chenango Sheriffs

By Zachary MESECK

THE GAZETTE

NORWICH Earlier this month the Chenango County Sheriff's Office recognized over 70 members of law enforcement for their contributions throughout the county at its annual award ceremony.

The ceremony was held on March 1, at the Northeast Classic Car Museum in Norwich. The main speaker, Chenango County Sheriff Ernest Cutting, started off the event with a discussion on various topics including the work of his employees, manpower shortages, and the hypothetical legalization of marijuana along with the impacts it could have on local communities.

Cutting said he recognized that all of the office's employees work hard and make significant contributions to the office and to the public they serve. He added, "While awards committee has selected several officers to receive formal awards for those who stood out in many situations last year, all staff are deserving of an award."

According to Cutting, the Chenango County 911 Center handled 90,342 emergency and non-emergency calls for service in 2018.

"The 911 Center is going through an aggressive modernization plan designed to prepare the center for emerging technologies and Next Generation in place for Text to 911, which allows a citizen who is unable to speak to a dispatcher for any number of reasons, to text their emergency."

He said while technology continues to improve, turnover rates in the corrections division of the sheriff's office remain an issue high due to the difficulty of the job.

"Manpower shortages still plague the corrections division, as it is a tough environment within which to work," said Cutting. "We hire five new officers and only one or two stay, largely due to the strain on families that the corrections occupation can cause."

He thanked county leadership for resolving employee contract issues, and he said that this is the first time in nearly 20 years that all labor contracts are up to date. He added that he hopes the now competitive wages resolve the manpower shortages the office has faced in 2018, and the office continues do its best to keep the citizens of Chenango County safe.

"Our detectives have continued making many arrests in the illegal sale and manufacture of heroin and methamphetamine," said Cutting. "Several arrests were made in 2018 which ultimately resulted in the largest illegal narcotics seizure in Chenango County history."

He said that the narcotics seizure stemmed from a joint investigation between the Chenango Sheriff's County Office, Norwich Police Department, and New York State Police. He added that Detective David Castle headed 911, said Cutting. "The the investigation on infrastructure was put behalf of the sheriff's office.

safety," said Cutting.

He stated that the legalization of marijuana will not make County Chenango safer, and will cause us to have to retire our current K-9, due to him having been imprinted with detecting marijuana, at a significant cost to county taxpayers.

According to Cutting, the Sheriff's Office School Resource Officer Program is now serving four schools including South Otselic, Sherburne, DCMO BOCES, and the Afton School Districts. He said all four of the school districts will have deputies in them five days a week in the near future, and funding for Sheriff's Camp remains secure.

"We will be able to provide another 350-400 kids a summer camp experience free of charge," said Cutting. "Your sheriff's office and its staff continue to meet the many challenges in the most cost efficient manner possible. We will answer the calls for help and protect and serve the good citizens of Chenango County."

Following Cutting's speech, over 50 members of law enforcement received award or special recognition for their service to the Chenango County Community. The awards included 24 individuals were recognized for their length of service at the Chenango

County Sheriff's Office, 19 individuals were recognized as new employees, 15 individuals received special recognition for exemplary work, and five who received formal agency commendations.

One individual who received special recognition was Chenango County Resident Russell Wark, said Cutting. "Wark was awarded a certificate of recognition for going above and beyond in extricating a woman who was trapped inside her overturned car after hitting a deer."

He said the Sergeant Michael R. Friot Award was established to honor the memory of Sgt. Friot and is given to a member of the Corrections Division who best exemplifies the dedication and professionalism Sergeant Michael R. Friot.

The 2018 Sergeant Michael R. Friot Award was given to Corrections Officer Samuel Rifanburg.

Cutting added that the Joseph J. Benenati, Jr. Award was established to honor the memory of retired Sheriff Joseph Benenati, Jr, and is presented to a Sheriff's Office member for outstanding dedication to the field of law enforcement and corrections.

The 2018 Joseph J. Benenati, Jr Award was presented to Deputy Chad O'Hara.

Cutting said other awards included patrol division and corrections division top guns. He said that in the patrol division, deputy Bret Bowen and deputy Nathan Warner received 249.75 points out of a maximum 250 points in their 2018 firearms qualifications, sergeant Dustin Smietana received 249.5 points, and deputy Anthony Lawrence received 249 points.

He added that in the corrections division, officer David Burdick received 249.5 points out of 250 points, offi-Korbin Neudel received 249 points, and officer Daniel Gilmore received 247 points.

Crouch calls for American Legion funding in state budget

ALBANY Assemblyman Clifford W. Crouch (R-Bainbridge) joined his colleagues in the Assembly Minority last week in sending a letter to the governor and legislative leaders calling for $150,000 for the American Legion Boys State program in the final state budget.

The American Legion Boys State is a weeklong program held at SUNY Morrisville that takes rising high school seniors and gives them first-class citizenship and leadership training. Students are exposed to government operations in New York, physical fitness, teamwork and other activities, under the guidance of American Legion counselors and active duty Marines.

"This is a great program for students who have shown an interest in service to their communities," Crouch. "This program has provided life skills and experience to thousands over the years and we hope to see it continue. We need to ensure that this program is properly funded, and we are seeking $150,000 in this year's budget to be allocated to the program. Investing in our young people is investing in our future."

The first umbrellas were made using natural materials, such as leaves, palm fronds or stretched papyrus.

Early Chinese umbrellas were made using silk cloth. Paper was later used about 2,000 years ago.

Long ago, owning an umbrella was a symbol of wealth and status.

During the 1700s and 1800s, small, fashion able umbrellas called 'parasols" were popular accessories for women in Europe.

For thousands of years, umbrellas were used almost exclusively by women. In the 1700s, Jonas Hanway of England endured ridiculé as he tried to make umbrellas fashionable for men.

During the first few thousand vears of its existence, the umbrella was used mainly for protection from the sun, rather than the rain.

Some storm umbrellas, such as those designed by Gerwin Hoogendoorn, are able to withstand winds of nearly 100 km/h (62 mph).

Senate budget plan needs improvement

A COLUMN OF NEWS AND COMMENT BY SENATOR JAMES L. SEWARD

Progress is continuing in Albany to finalize a state budget prior to the start of the new fiscal year on April 1. However, there is some serious work ahead.

The senate just passed a "one-house" budget resolution. While not binding, the resolution offers a look at the priorities that will be discussed in the coming days and weeks. I have grave concerns with the senate plan put forth by the new Democrat Majority and I voted NO on the resolution.

At a time when New York is losing population and our economy, particularly upstate, is in trouble, we need a fiscally sound budget that focuses on affordability and a revitalized economy. Sadly, the plan advanced by the New York City lead majority failed to address those key priorities.

As ranking member of the Senate Finance Committee, I took an active role in the legislative budget hearings, examining the details of the governor's budget proposal. Throughout the hearings, which spanned eleven days and countless hours, I asked the agency leaders and others who testified to explain how the budget plan would affect the lives of everyday New Yorkers. The same question is still on my mind as I examining the Senate Majority's budget resolution.

How is this budget

wish list going to help people secure good paying jobs, pay their bills, and raise their families here in New York State? There are no tax cuts to help people afford their first home, keep up with the rising cost of living, and pay skyrocketing property taxes. There are no initiatives that will help our locally owned small businesses grow. The cost of energy will not be dropping to help our upstate manufacturers. On the heels of the Amazon debacle, there certainly is nothing to attract out of state businesses to New York

Last year, the governor and assembly proposed a combined $20 billion in new taxes, and my Senate Republican colleagues and I rejected them

all. Again this year, the governor is pushing for $1 billion in new taxes. However, while my senate Republican colleagues and I have clearly stated the need to block new taxes, the new Senate Majority has embraced them as part of their tax and spend budget resolution. In fact, they have added additional taxes that will only take more money from hardworking New Yorkers.

This budget plan will only accelerate the outmigration New York has been experiencing. In the end, there will be even fewer of us left behind to pay the escalating tax bills. The plan fails to fix the state's affordability crisis, and it will not revitalize New York's economy.

Prior to the release of the new Senate Majority's budget, I joined with my Republican colleagues to call for a plan that blocks tax increases and would in fact cut taxes for those who are already paying too much.

A recent study by the Tax Foundation found that New York holds the unfortunate position of number one in the nation in combined state and local income tax burden. The non-partisan think tank also concluded that New York ranks 48 out of 50 when it comes to overall business tax climate, only California and New Jersey rank below us. Changes are needed now.

In case you think this is simply partisan politics, a Republican railing at the Democrat majority, here is what the Democrat governor's budget director had to say about the plan, "The senate one house budget is wholly incredible. The senate's plan would increase spending by nearly $3.5 billion, compared to the Executive Budget while identifying no material spending cuts or new revenues."

There is still time to formulate a sensible, fiscally responsible budget that will meet the needs of all New Yorkers. As we enter the final weeks of budget negotiations, we need to control spending and delete all new taxes from the conversation. Affordability, tax relief, and measures that will encourage job growth must be priorities.

Pendulum Lesson at the New Berlin Library

Cooperative Extension of Chenango County After School Program held a lesson at the New Berlin Library on Wednesday, February 20 called Pendulums. Educator Christina Hall taught participating children about pendulums and their many uses. The children made art by creating pendulums using dowels, string, and cut soda bottles. They filled the soda bottles with acrylic paint and set them in motion over large sheets of paper. After the lesson a snack of Chobani yogurt and drinks was available. The yogurt is donated to the New Berlin Library through Chobani Product Donations.

Seward takes in student art at the Capitol

Senator James L. Seward (R/C/I/Ref-Oneonta) welcomed student artists and their families to Albany for the 29th annual New York State Art Teachers Association Legislative Student Art Exhibition on March 6.

"Our local students are remarkably talented and it is wonder-ALBANY – State ful to see their artwork displayed with others from across the state," said Senator Seward. "Even more inspiring is the opportunity to speak with the young artists first-hand and learn about the hard work that went in to each project."

> Senator Seward had the opportunity to meet with several stu dents from his senate district, including Sophia Coughlin and Eliana Morey both first graders from Milford Central School and art teacher Jill Accordino.

"The annual Albany art show is a wonderful way to recognize our students' artistic achievement and highlight the importance of art education in our schools," Seward concluded.
